Education

Bachelor of Arts in Journalism with a minor in Spanish

Graduation Date: June 2017 with highest honors (Summa Cum Laude)

University of Oregon, School of Journalism and Communication, Eugene, OR

Professional and Technical Skills

Writing for Multimedia

- I have written almost 100 articles and short stories for various publications, including Kotaku, GameLuster, and Art Ducko, my university's comic's magazine. I self-published a graphic novel in April 2018.

Producing

- I run a weekly YouTube show, 1Game1Minute, which focuses on upcoming indie games. I also produced a couple of animatics. In school, I directed live news programs and webcasts. I learned how to organize rundowns, manage a news team, and assign stories. I also produced new stories and other videos for Kotaku's social media sites.

Software and Other Equipment

- I can work with both Macs and PCs. I know how to use Final Cut Pro, Adobe Premiere Pro, and other Adobe programs. I have experience using DSLRs, JVCs, and Panasonic HMC 40s for shooting.

Professional Experience

September 2017-Current | Bilingual Advisor | Gravie | Minneapolis

- I work as a broker at this start up. I primarily provide customer service, but I also assisted in building our knowledge hub, Guru, and researched plan information across multiple states.

June 2017-September 2017 | Intern and Reporter | Kotaku, Gizmodo Media Group | NYC

- I published over 35 pieces during my time with this site, and I produced a few videos for Facebook and Twitter. Two of my videos have reached over 100 thousand views, as well as three of my articles. Additionally, I helped my colleagues with reporting and filming in the field.

Additional Work History

July 2018 - Present | Freelance Writer | GameLuster | Remote

- I write about indie games and stories related to the video games industry. I also produce a YouTube show, Indie Power Hour, which highlights some of these projects. Recently, I also launched my own podcast.

Awards and Recognition

May 2016 | Gerlinger Cup | University Of Oregon

- This prestigious award is given to a junior woman on the basis of volunteerism, leadership, and service to the community.
